Three Day International Workshop on “Health and Social Care Needs of Migrants”

15-17 June 2007
Athens, Greece

The Department of Sociology of the National School of Public Health (NSPH), Athens, in collaboration with the European Center for the Study of Migration and Social Care (MASC), University of Kent, is organising a training workshop for health and social care professionals and social scientists who work with immigrants and displaced populations. The workshop will focus on issues of culturally sensitive and appropriate service provision for migrants and refugees. During the workshop, participants will visit the offices of PRAXIS, a non-voluntary organisation that offers health services for migrants and refugees in Athens.

This meeting is taking place for the first time in Greece, as part of a European Masters programme in Migration, Mental Health & Social Care, with students from Netherlands, United Kingdom and Greece. The workshop will be conducted in English.

Speakers include:

Professor Dimosthenes Agrafiotis, NSPH
Professor David Ingleby, University of Utrecht
Dr Charles Watters, University of Kent

Venue: National School of Public Health, Athens, Greece
Workshop fees: 165 Euros (including workshop material, meals and refreshments)
Participants must make their own travel and accommodation arrangements
